Dear Sir:

I am appalled at the fact WalMart is going to enter the banking world. This will give that corporation an even bigger hold on the economy and retail business.

WaMart is a large enough corporation. It does not need to enter into the banking/financial business.

I personally do not shop at WalMart very much, the reason being: I do not like the store. Should it go into the banking industry, this will give me an even better reason to boycott WalMart and urge all I know to do the same.

Very truly yours,

D. Peterson
